Science4Peace Initiative

- In our paper “A Science4Peace initiative: Alleviating the consequences of sanctions in international scientific cooperation” on <https://arxiv.org/abs/2403.07833> we propose a Science4Peace initiative:
  - Allowing and encouraging international scientific cooperation among all countries committed to the United Nations charter;
  - Continuing scientific communication between individuals and continuing to produce common scientific publications on fundamental physics, without political constraints;
  - Initiating dedicated projects in theory and phenomenology, as well as in experimental physics based on openly accessible resources, for interested scientists on the basis of universal non-military scientific goals, independent of the nationality, gender or color of the participating scientists;
  - Allowing wide conference participation, independently of restrictions, by holding conferences at least in hybrid mode, which will also reduce significantly flights and the associated ecological footprint
  - Organizing international summer-schools for students that are either fully online or open to students from anywhere, with full coverage provided for travel and local expenses.

Science4Peace Initiative

- International Conferences:
  - most conferences appear again as in-person conferences
  - many still exclude participants from Russia, explicitly or implicitly
    - need for a change:
      - call for a brain storming discussion on new conferences/workshops with different goals and impacts – interest ?
  - summer-student programs – fully online, without restrictions
    - how can we achieve this ?
      - DESY might be interested !!!
